verbs :-

+ In Japanese usually verbs have two endings.

1) RU

2) U

+ And as always there is also exceptions
+ Exception (irregular) verb are only two.

1) RU - Ending verbs :-

1) Ends with "ru".

2) Before the last letter it sounds like (る / り)

Example :

1) Ta be ru $\Rightarrow$ to eat

[タベ^ル]

2) mi ru $\Rightarrow$ to see

[ミ^ル]

2) U - Ending verbs :-

1) ends with 'u'.

2) other than 'ru' verbs and

"irregular" verbs, everything is a
'u' ending verbs.

Example:

1) Hanasu - to speak

[はなす]

2) nomu - to drink

[のむ]

3) Irregular verbs:

1) kuru - to come

2) suru - to do.

_____ x _____

Masu Form:

Converting a word (verb) from dictionary form into usable format.

For "3" - ru verbs:

=> Remove "ru - 3" and add "masu".

Eg: Taberu - to eat

~~taberu~~ - tabemasu

=> miru - to see

miru - mimasu

For "u" - u verbs :-

convert the u sound to "i" sound / column in hiragana chart.

Eg :- nomu - to drink

nomu → change "mu" to "mi"

→ nomi → add masu → nomimasu.

=> kaku - to write

kaku - kakisasu

For irregular verbs :-

+ just memorise these two irregular verbs.

kuru - kimasu - to come suru - shimasu - to do.

Tense formation using masu form :-

+ we can convert a verb into our desired tense using masu form.

verb + masu $\Rightarrow$ present positive verb + masen $\Rightarrow$ present negative verb + mashita $\Rightarrow$ past positive verb + masen deshita $\Rightarrow$ past negative verb + masu ka $\Rightarrow$ question in present tense verb + mashita ka $\Rightarrow$ question in past tense important notes [∴] :

$\Rightarrow$ no future tense :

$\Rightarrow$ we identify whether the speaker is talking about present or future only using the context.

$\Rightarrow$ no gender :

$\Rightarrow$ there is no pointing out the gender.
